FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

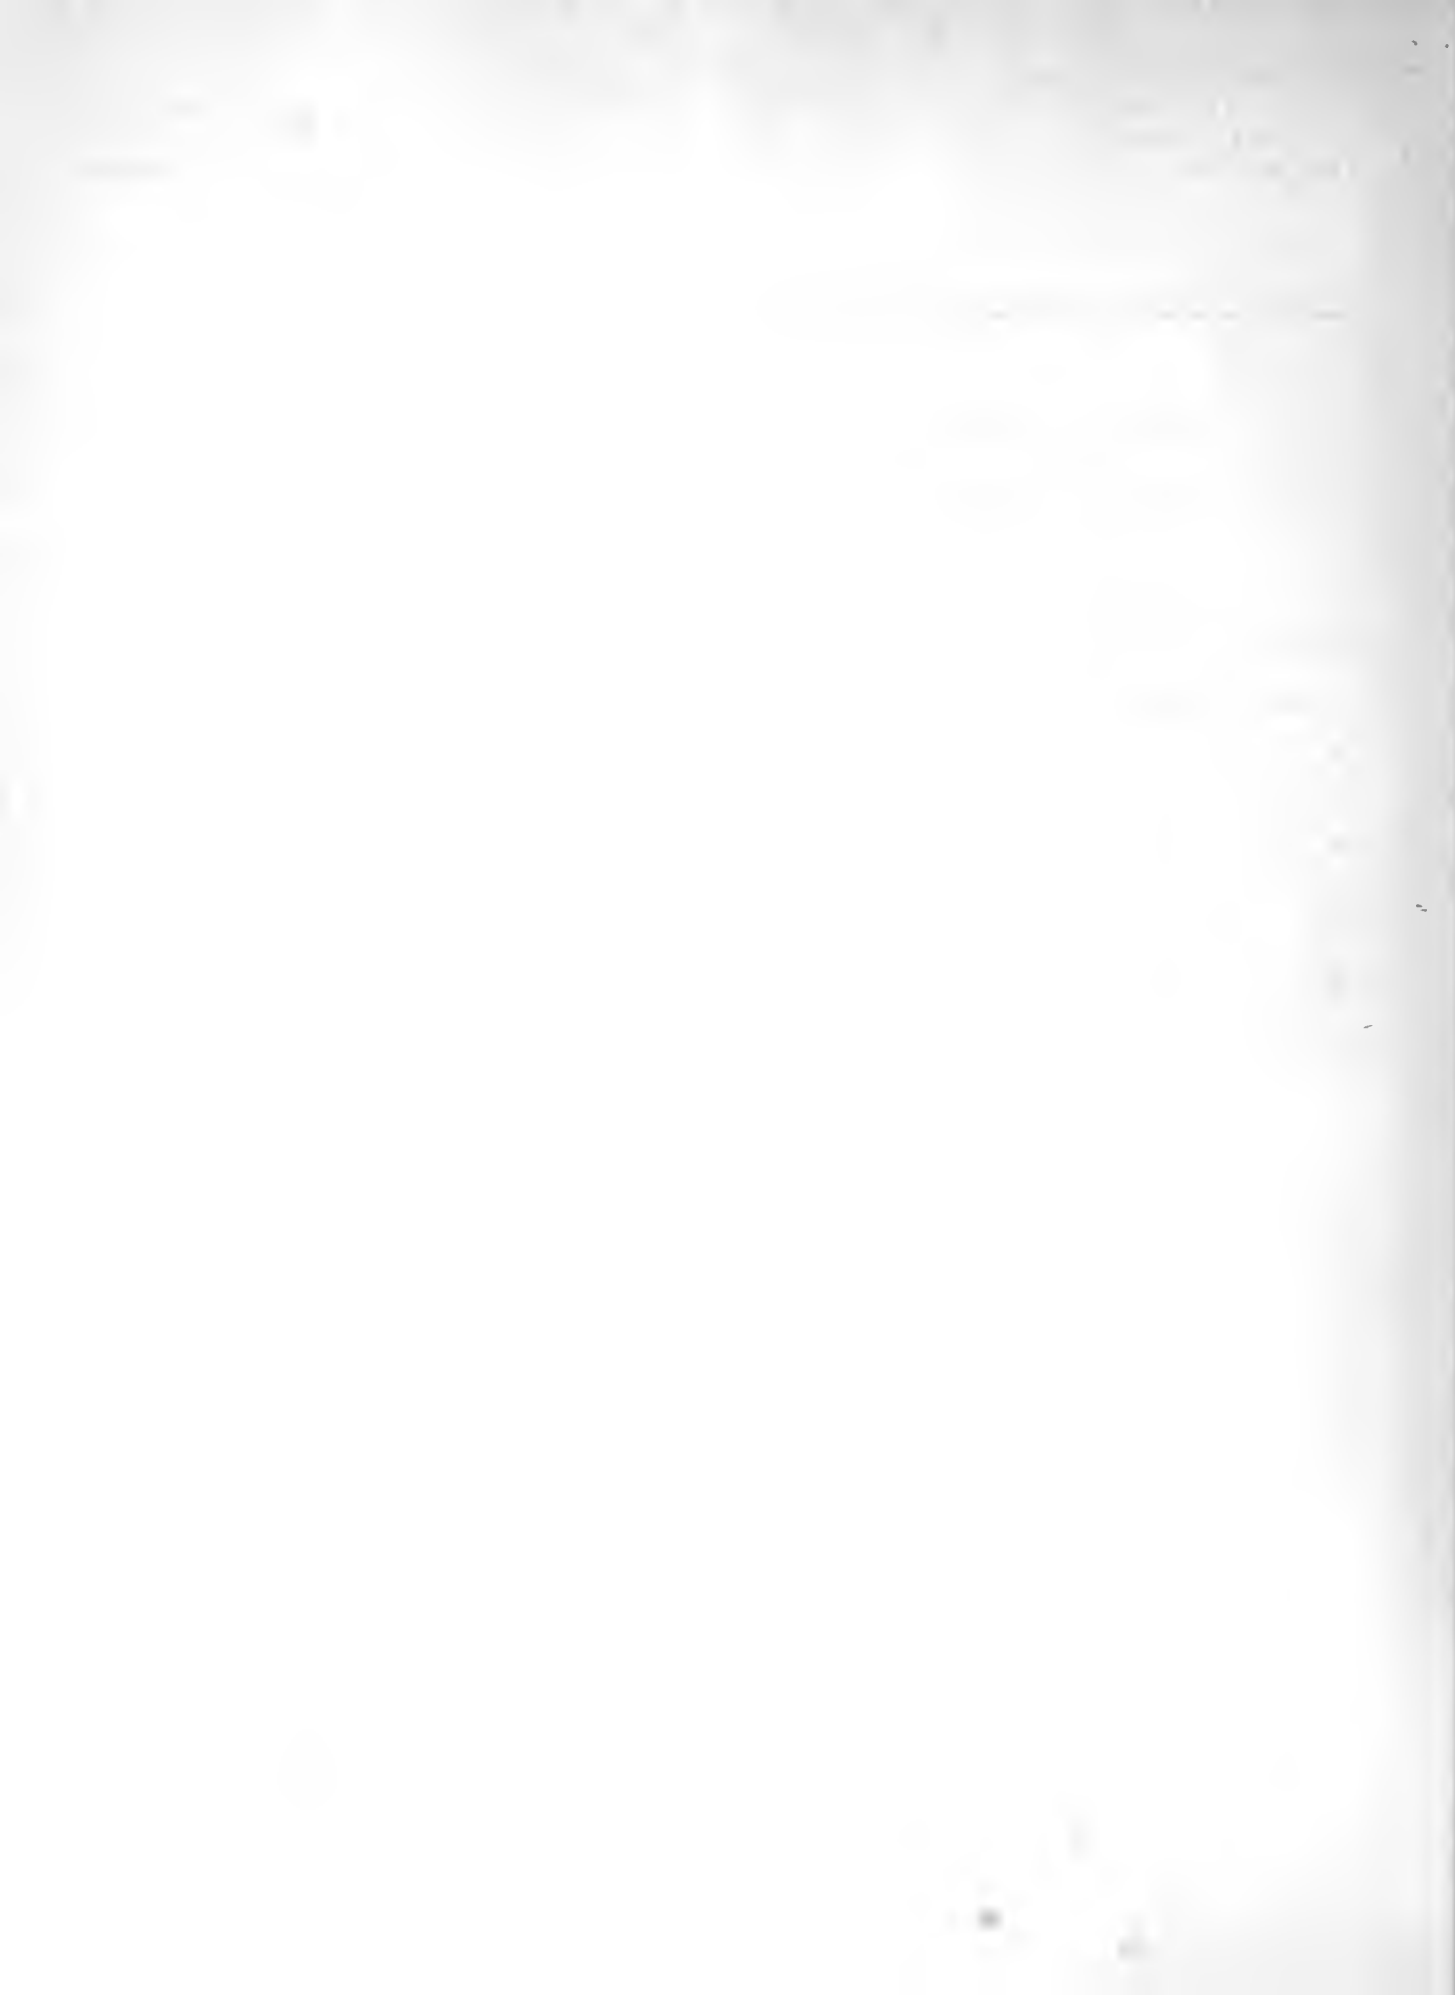

AUGUSTA COLLEGE PRESENTS "HUMAN ADVENTURE"

President Gerald B. Robins announced today that Augusta College will enter the field of educational broadcasting this week.

Dr. Morris Philip Wolf, chairman of the Department of English and Speech, will produce and moderate "The Human Adventure," a new radio series, every Saturday at 7:05 p.m. on WBBQ beginning October 15.

Dr. Wolf, who has performed professionally on the A.B.C., C.B.S., M.B.S., N.B.C., and Dumont networks, said: "'The Human Adventure' will attempt to explore the miracles that are the mind, the heart, the spirit of man. This program is for and about all of us who are human and who are striving to become humane."

Professors S. L. Wallace and Harry Dolyniuk will participate in the premiere broadcast, entitled "What Is Man?" Joyce McCullough and Wallace Youngblood, Augusta College students, will serve as production assistant and announcer, respectively.

* * * * *

FACULTY

1. The all faculty meeting has been postponed from tomorrow night to Wednesday, November 9. Remember the new date Wednesday, November 9, 7:30 P.M. - New Library. Committee chairmen will make abbreviated reports at this meeting concerning the standing committees and the general committees.
2. From time to time, I shall be sharing some thoughts pertinent to our situation with you. These are, of course, intended to stimulate thought and consideration and to reap any benefits that may accrue from this. The attached excerpt is a good beginning, I think.
3. As you have noticed, the bell system is not yet functioning properly. It will be up to you to start and release your classes on time until this is corrected. Periods are: 6:00 - 8:10 and 8:30 - 10:40. Lab classes 5:50 - 8:20 and 8:30 - 11:00. Five minute breaks for each.

"The world we now live in makes it necessary that colleges produce men of character and principle since its safety cannot reasonably be entrusted to men merely of skill. Skills are neutral favoring neither the good nor the evil. If this is true it becomes promptly important to identify what is the factor present in colleges where a peculiar potency for character building exists. Schools and college best enhance this potency when they require the best job in academic performance. The conditions conducive to high performance in teaching and learning are exactly those that are chiefly conducive to the development of character. Large or small, wealthy or poor, each educational institution can be such a force if it really wants to. The principal determinate is the level of student performance expected. The sad part is that on most campuses it is low and only a few persons are performing to full capacity. Where trustees, officers, and faculty live by the conviction that learning demands excellence and nothing short of high academic performance will be settled for, teachers as well as students will respond. This conviction more than anything else is the controlling influence. All other worthwhile ingredients of a college experience flow from this, good student performance, good teaching, the satisfactory curriculum and effective religious responsibility and practice. Where there is firm commitment to academic excellence, college courses gain meaning and relevance and students today have a greater concern for finding meaning in life than this century has heretofore seen."

2. All final grades are due by 7:30 p.m. on Wednesday, March 15. Augusta College grades are reported numerically on class cards given to you at the beginning of the quarter.

FACULTY:

As one goes about his job of teaching, he often times considers the question, "How am I doing, or how effective am I as I teach?" He ponders the problem of how he "stands" or appears to his students. This, it seems to me, is only natural and proper. A weighing or evaluating as to your effectiveness is essential to quality performance.

I have observed this healthy attitude among you; it is gratifying to me and is most beneficial to you, your students and Augusta College.

As you know, students, particularly adult students, can be very helpful in evaluating what we are doing. Attached is a student evaluation sheet that you may have your students complete in order to see what they think about your teaching. Let me emphasize that this is strictly voluntary and optional on your part. If you feel that this would help you, feel free to pick up enough of these sheets for each of your students. Naturally, students are not to sign names to sheets when completing them.

Let me know what you think about this.
